Academic Honesty Policy

What is the purpose of an Academic Honesty Policy?

This document is designed to firstly define Academic Honesty and then to clearly explain the roles and responsibilities of all stakeholders when it comes to maintaining the highest ethics when it comes to Academic Honesty. Academic honesty is part of being “principled”, a learner profile attribute where learners strive to “act with integrity and honesty” as we question, inquire and act. After reading this document all members of the school community should have a better understanding of their responsibilities in order for us as an educational institution to avoid any malpractice occurring.

The IB states in the IB Learner Profiles that students must “act with integrity and honesty, with a strong sense of fairness, justice and respect for the dignity of the individual, groups and communities.” They are also to “take responsibility for their own actions and the consequences that accompany them.”

As an IB world school we must instill the importance of Academic honesty on all our students.

Definitions

Malpractice

Malpractice is defined as: Any behavior that results in, or may result in, a student or group of students gaining unfair advantages in academic work. Malpractice includes but is not limited to plagiarism, collusion, duplication of work, cheating, and falsifying data/work.

Plagiarism

Plagiarism is defined as: The practice of taking someone else's work or ideas and passing them off as one's own.

Examples may include:

- Submitting as one's own work an examination, paper, homework assignment, or other project (laboratory report, artistic work, computer program, etc.) that was created entirely or partially by someone else.
- Failure to use quotation marks to signal that one is using another person's precise words. Even brief phrases must be enclosed in quotation marks and properly cited.
- Failure to identify (cite) the source of quotations and paraphrases. Of course one must cite the source of quotations; one must also cite the source of ideas and information that are not common knowledge even when paraphrased (presented in one's own words). Sources include unpublished as well as published items—for example, books, articles, material on the internet, television programs, instructors' lectures, and people, including other students, friends, and relatives.

- Failure to identify the source of the elements of a nonverbal work (for example, a painting, dance, musical composition, photograph/image, or mathematical proof) that are derived from the work of others.

Collusion

Collusion is defined as supporting the malpractice by another student or assisting another student's academic dishonesty.

Examples may include:

- Writing a paper or other project for another student.
- Allowing another student to copy from one's examination, paper, homework assignment, or other project.
- Assisting another student on a take-home examination, paper, homework assignment, or other project if one knows or suspects such assistance is not authorized by the instructor.
- Sharing information regarding assessment contents and questions with other students.

Cheating

Cheating is defined as: The use or attempted use of unauthorized assistance during an examination, on a writing assignment, homework assignment, or other project.

Examples may include:

- Copying answers from another student's examination, paper, homework assignment, with or without that person's consent.
- Providing work to be copied (collusion).
- Communicating in any way with another student or a third party during an examination without the permission of the instructor.
- Using unauthorized materials or devices (including notes, textbooks, universal translator, cell phone, calculator, or any other electronic device) during an assignment or examination without the permission of the instructor.
- Obtaining and/or reading a copy of an examination before its administration without the permission of the instructor.
- Collaborating with other students or third parties on a take-home examination, paper, homework assignment, lab work or other project without the permission of the instructor. Further clarification: In science, the student's internal assessment is a compilation of his/her lab reports. It is considered collusion in IB for students to work together on lab reports unless they are specifically required to and given permission from their teacher.

Fabrication

Fabrication is defined as: The creation of false data or citations.

Examples may include:

- Fabrication of data: Inventing or falsifying the data of a laboratory experiment, field project, CAS activity, or other project.
- Fabrication of a citation: Inventing a phony citation for a research paper or other project.

- Alteration of an assignment: Altering a graded examination, paper, homework assignment, or other project and re-submitting it to the instructor in order to claim an error in grading.

Hitchhiking

Hitchhiking is defined as: When a student “hitchhikes” in class, he or she is allowing a partner or group members to do a disproportionate amount of work in a collaborative project while the hitchhiker does not participate equally. This lack of equal contribution to a collaborative assignment constitutes academic dishonesty and will be penalized as such.

Duplication of work

Duplication is defined as: Using the same work for more than one course without clear permission from the instructor. Students are expected to produce original work for each course of study.

Examples may include:

- Submitting a paper or project in more than one course for a grade
- Submitting a lab report for more than one course without discussing it with both teachers involved.

Role of Librarian

The Librarian plays an important role in school wise implementation of the academic honesty. She/he is the main resource in the area of academic honesty who can provide ethical guidance on the most suitable citation/referencing system used in each assessment.

The librarian should be able to promote academic honesty within the school by providing support and assistance in terms of research, and the correct use of citations. The Library website also provides considerable advice regarding these aspects of academic honesty.

The librarian must give an internal workshop to students and teachers regarding academic honesty and referencing guide every beginning of new academic year and along the academic year should the management members feel the needs of it.

Detailed roles and responsibilities of a librarian is stated in Roles and Responsibilities of a DP Librarian document.

Procedures of reporting, recording, and monitoring

Academic honesty should be the responsibility of all stakeholders in the school. Any suspected academic dishonesty should first be identified by the subject teacher and handled carefully and treated as a formal learning experience by the student. Subject teacher must report all academic dishonesty cases to Vice Principal for Academic Affairs who will record all academic dishonesty cases.

The student is always permitted to explain the situation and present a defense to his/her action. Consequences to each academic dishonesty will depend on the level of action and how many times the student has done the academic dishonesty.

Rights of a Student Suspected of Academic Dishonesty

Initial breaches of academic dishonesty will be treated as a formative learning experience for the students. School and teachers will respect the student's right of privacy and teachers along with the counsellor will support the students in a way that student is reflective and avoids academic misconduct in future. The student will participate in a discussion with the concerned teacher and school counselor.
